“ Amy helped me start over with my life. Without her willingness to help me I would have started over with nothing. She helped me move from a horrible situation without question or judgment. Years later I am still thinking of ways to repay her and her father for their help. I wish I would have told her more than thank you. I wish I would have told her that she was an inspiration to me with how she helped others. That she showed me what happiness looked like when you saw her love for her son, and that there were positive things to come in my future if I just believed. Thank you Amy for all you did whether you knew it or not. You may have left the physical world but your love will be with everyone you touched forever. I truly feel blessed to have known you. May God be with your family in their time of need.

“ I worked with Amy at GLWACH. I hired her as our librarian and was able to have a really good library for the hospital.
I met Ryan and knew she loved him like crazy. He was the center of her world. Amy always had a smile when you met her behind the front desk or in the hallway. Great listener with a heart bigger than the room she stood in. Loved being with her and around her!

My heart breaks for Ryan and her family. She has got her baby boy wrapped in her arms even from heaven. Sending hugs, prayers, and peace as we move through the holidays.

Just know some of her friends are just finding out and our hearts are breaking as if it was yesterday. We know she isn't far away as she looks down upon us encouraging us to think positive and smile.

Love ya Amy!

“ Few people have ever made me as happy to be in their company as my friend Amy Fisher. I loved every single moment I spent with her. She had such an infectious laugh and spirit. I speak of her often. I wish I had got to see her one more time.

“ My prayers go out to the Fisher Family during this difficult time. Amy was such a joy to know. I couldn't have asked for better neighbors having her and Ryan living next to me for so many years. She was always so thoughtful and such a great person. I will miss her.
